Preface.

I HAD no purpose to write a book; but from the year 1849 onward, copying whatever I came upon, in general reading, concerning the Wynkoop surname, I found myself, at length, seeking such information, and finally in possession of considerable, but disconnected, material. To give this permanence, and to secure missing links, in 1866, I published a pamphlet, crude, and, in some instances, self-contradictory, because it was not possible to distinguish between conflicting authorities. The pamphlet served the purpose I had in view, and enabled me to prepare this book. Some of the family blood assisted me to meet the expense of the pamphlet, and so many persons have contributed the information within their reach, that individual acknowledgment here would make a tedious text, and this general recognition of aid will probably be acceptable.

This book, then, is not the foreseen result of a purpose at the beginning of the work of which this is the product. The labor has given me agreeable employment, perhaps in excessive measure as to quantity. And now I dedicate it to all of kindred blood with me; judging that it will be interesting to them, but not to other persons, except as it may aid their own genealogical researches.

Only one effort, and that ineffectual, has been made to trace the name to its origin in the old country, although it is manifestly there still. Henry J. Wynkoop, of Rochester, and afterward of Bath, Steuben Co., New York, was born of Amsterdam parents.

The labor has proved sufficient, in amount and perplexity, without any effort to follow up the descendants from female members of the family. Therefore, the children only of such persons have been here given. The remoter descendants might be included in another edition.

It has been my aim to observe just relative proportion in the accounts of the individual members. Sometimes the record is more extended in one case than in another of equal importance, because in the former case the material in my possession has been more ample.

Criticism, which aims to correct, to fill out, or to supplement, is invited. I would be pleased to be the repositary of information, as to future events affecting members of the family, so that the record may be continued in manuscript, for future publication.

I would like to make a collection of family portraits, and have obtained some already; and would be glad to have them from as many members of the family as are willing to appear in such a collection, and will contribute their card photographs for that purpose.

My resort to copyright is prompted by no thought of profit; but by a desire to keep control of material which has cost me some money, and many years of labor.

RICHARD WYNKOOP.

VIRTUTEM
COLERE

Introduction to the Genealogy.

The first trace of the name which has been discovered in the United States of America, is in 1639, when Peter Wynkoop appears in certain court proceedings. It is assumed that he was the founder of the family in this country, and the father of Cornelius, who settled in Esopus, Ulster County; for Peter was a settler at Albany, and Cornelius went thence to Esopus, and a comparison of dates leads to the conclusion that they bore the relation of father and son.

Tradition says that Cornelius C. Wynkoop, a young bachelor, came to this country, from Utrecht, in the United Dutch Netherlands, and settled at Vest Oranje (Fort Orange), which is now included within the city of Albany, that he erected there certain waterworks, which were destroyed by a freshet, and that he removed thence to Hurley, Ulster County.[1]

The name appears to be a contraction of Wynkooper, which, in the Dutch language, signifies wine merchant.[2]

A curious and suggestive engraving, upon copper-plate, came into the possession of the Compiler, from his grandfather, Peter Wynkoop, of which a lithograph is here given. It appears to be designed as a coat of arms, yet the crest is the only part which savors of heraldry. Two distinct prints, identical in substance, but differing circumstantially, have been preserved in as many branches of the family; one with female supporters to the shield, and the name of either Cornelius C. Wynkoop or Augustus Wynkoop associated with it; the other having the name of Peter Wynkoop.

[1] Family Bible of Judge Henry Wynkoop, No. 113.

[2] In modern Dutch the spelling would be Wijnkooper. Willem Sewell, in his Dictionary, 1754, says that the word Wynkoop was used in the sense of "Something to drink upon the bargain; or, the gain of a wager to be spent in drink."

Our motto, Virtutem Hilaritate Colere—To adorn excellence with joyousness—has been preserved upon a piece of silver ware in the possession of Mrs. Leonard Mortimer Thorne, a descendant of Mrs. James Roguet, No. "215." Thence it has been produced in the lithograph; taking the place of the name "Peter Wynkoop," which was in the copper-plate when it cameinto the hands of the Compiler.

The family name is borne by a bay in the southerly coast of Java, near the westerly end of the island. This must be a memento of some navigator, or merchant, or landed proprietor.

WYNKOOP GENEALOGY.

First Generation.

1. Peter.—Born 1616. This appears from his statement, in a declaration made by him, March 9, 1640,[1] that he was then twenty-four years old.

His name is first mentioned in certain court proceedings, February 10, 1639, Fiscaal against Peter Wynkoop, for smuggling; the liquors were confiscated and the defendant was fined twelve guilders.[2] This was a bad beginning; but the after record of him indicates a substantial and trusted citizen.

In the following year he made a declaration as to the ownership of hay, which was in the possession of Barent Dircksen.[1]

Two years later he is mentioned as Commissary Superintendent of Wares and Merchandise for the Patroon Van Rensselaer, and as a settler at Rensselaerwyck, now Albany.[3]

In 1644 he was commissioned by the Patroon to purchase land about Catskill, from the natives, and, in connection with the Commissary-General, Arendt Van Curler, to recover land and other property, which was alleged to have been purchased and misappropriated by Adriaan Vander Donck, a former agent.[4]

In the same year Peter Wynkoop was supercargo of the vessel "The Arms of Rensselaerwyck," and arrived with her at Manhattan, now New York, she having been dispatched the previous autumn by the Patroon to his colony. Kieft, the Governor, demanded from him shoes for the soldiers, who were then fighting the Indians of the neighborhood of Hempstead, Long Island. Wynkoop refused to supply them. Kieft seized the shoes and ordered the vessel to be searched, and finding powder and guns, which were not manifested, he declared them contraband, and seized both cargo and vessel. Wynkoop protested. He also sued the Fiscaal at Fort Amsterdam. The vessel and cargo were released, however, and the case was referred for settlement to the Directors in Holland. She soon after sailed.[1]

March 10, 1644. Court proceedings. Adriaen Willemsen against Peter Wynkoop, on complaint that the defendant had stated that the plaintiff gave information that there were prohibited goods on board; defendant says it was the boatswain, who is ordered to appear, and Wynkoop is discharged. March 17, 1644, Adriaen Willemsen against Andrew, the boatswain, for having reported that plaintiff had informed against Rensselaer's ship, for having contraband goods on board; defendant says Lubbert Jansen told him so. Lubbert Jansen declares that what he reported about the ship is untrue; that he knows nothing of the plaintiff but what is honorable and virtuous; is sorry for what he said, and begs plaintiff's pardon. Lubbert Jansen to pay costs.[2]

March 18, 1644. Protest. Peter Wynkoop, Supercargo of the ship "The Arms of Rensselaerwyck," against Fiscaal Vander Huyghens, for discharging that vessel. March 22, 1644. Answer of Fiscaal Vander Huyghens to the above. March 23, 1644. Receipt: Peter Wynkoop, for 18 kegs of gunpowder from the Fiscaal. October 27, 1644. Court proceedings. Fiscaal against Peter Wynkoop, Supercargo of the ship "The Arms of Rensselaerwyck," smuggling, on petition of Arendt Van Curler. Case referred to the Directors of the West India Company in Amsterdam, as the vessel is old and leaky.[3]

May 31, 1646. Court proceedings. Hillegond Joris against Peter Wynkoop, on an order to show cause why defendant had arrested plaintiff's husband in the colony Rensselaerwyck. Defendant says for debt; and that the case having originated in Rensselaerwyck, must be determined there.[4]

June 8, 1646. Court proceedings. Peter Wynkoop against Adriaen Vander Donck. Action on a note signed by Anthony de Hooges. De Hooges promising payment, judgment is given against him.[1]

Second Generation.

2. Cornelius.—No positive evidence has been found of relationship between this Cornelius, and the Peter who has been already mentioned. But Peter's name is recorded at Albany as settled there in 1642, and in an instrument executed by him at that place, in 1640, he is described as twenty-four years old; and the name of Cornelius appears at the same place as a resident, and as making contracts there, in 1657. It is therefore probable that Cornelius was son of Peter.

The first record found of Cornelius is an agreement, dated January 29, 1657, for the purchase of a house at Albany from Marcellus Janssen (Van Bommel), for 911 guilders, equal to $364.40. And on the 19th of September of the same year he was surety for William Brouwer.[2]

On the 1st of May, 1658, he brought an action of debt, at Albany, against Cornelius Teunnissen, for his share of the expense of foddering and taking care of the town bull during the winter. Judgment for plaintiff, ten guilders, equal to $4.00.[3]

On the 25th of November of the year following, an order was made, upon his request, for the appointment of curators over the estate at Esopus, left by Gysbert Philipsen, who had been murdered by the Indians at that place.[3]

He made a lease, May 30, 1662, to Lambert Huybertse, of lots one and sixteen at Esopus.[4]

On the 25th of April, 1663, Cornelius obtained a grant of twelve morgens of land at Esopus,[5] Ulster County. This [5] The name Esopus was applied to a wide and undefined territory (Collections Ulster Hist. Soc., Vol. 1, p. 28). The place was first called Wildwyk, meaning Indian District (Dutch Church Magazine, 1727, Vol. 1, p. 190). The name Wildwyk was, until recently, borne by a locality between Rondout and Kingston. Kingston has since absorbed the other two.

land was at Hurley, and contained nearly twenty-six acres. In the Book of Patents, in the Secretary of State's office, is a confirmatory patent to Cornelius Wynkoop, dated June 28, 1667, of a parcel of land at Esopus, near the new village, to the west of Nicholas Varlett, on the west side of the creek, containing about twenty-four acres; also a lot west of the highway, and west of Lambert Huybertse's—all granted originally by Director Stuyvesant. This "new village" is now Hurley.[1] On the 30th of March, 1670, the Commissioners for laying out land at Esopus, allowed Cornelius to lay out his two parcels of land at Hurley in one farm, on condition that he set off five morgens for the assistance of Marbletown. In the annexed Register of Patents to inhabitants of the town of Hurley, there is for Cornelius Wynkoop twenty-four acres and forty-eight acres.[2]

The place at Hurley, now owned and occupied by George, No. "275," has been for a long series of years in the continuous occupation of a male line of the family; and it is believed to be the original homestead. Part of the present house is reputed to be one hundred and fifty years old. A painting of the same, by William H. Snyder, of Brooklyn, under the name of "Wynkoop House," was on exhibition at the Academy of Design a few years since.

Cornelius seems to have been a resident of Albany as late as October 19, 1665, for he is recorded in the Deacon's Book of that date, as giving, for alms, 17 guilders 10 stivers.[3]

In 1671 he was elected an Elder of the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church at Kingston. Hermanus Blom was at this time, or had been recently, Pastor.[4]

On the 10th of June, 1672, he was appointed one of the two new Commissaries of Kingston. He was again appointed October 6, 1673, and served until August 14, 1674.[5]

[1] The Commissioners who had been appointed by Governor Lovelace, laid out two towns, Sept. 17, 1669, naming the one nearest to what is now Kingston, Hurley, in honor of the Governor's ancestral home on the Thames, England; and they gave the name Kingston, Sept. 25, 1669, also in honor of the Governor, who had married the widow of William Hyde, of Kingston Lisle, near Wantage, Berkshire, England. They named Marbletown from its stone. (Col. Uls. Hist. Soc., Vol. 1, p. 51.)

He was Schepen of Hurley in 1673.[1] On the 5th of July, 1674, he was witness to the renewal of a treaty with the Indians.[2]

Cornelius, on the 11th of August, 1676, appeared before William La Montagne, Secretary for the Honorable Justices at Kingston, and made his will, "leaving behind his lawful wife and seven children." On the 16th of May, 1679, "Maria, widow of Cornelius Wynkoop"—signing herself "Maria Langedyck, widow of Cornelius Wynkoop" —made her will, appointing "for tutors or guardians of her minor children, Wessel Ten Brook and William De Meyer." She declared that her "oldest son Johannes shall first have the silver piece from the fleet of Port Heen." She called Marytje her oldest daughter, and Benjamin her youngest son.[3] The record at Kingston of the baptism of her children Catharine and Benjamin, call her simply Marytje Jans.[4] In March, 1660, among the immigrants by the "Love," was Marytje Jansen, maiden, and in the same month, in the "Gilded Beaver," was Maria Jans, orphan daughter.[5]

An inventory of the property sold at auction, of Cornelius, was made in 1677. The guardians under Mrs. Wynkoop's will were, on the 8th of February, 1681, ordered to account for the property by Spring. The Administrators let her property in 1681.[6]

No information has been obtained as to the dates of birth or of baptism of their children Marytje, Johannes, or Gerrit. But the descriptions in Mrs. Wynkoop's will, and a comparison of the given dates of birth or of baptism, with the order of sequence of the names in two deeds, make it seem probable that Marytje or Johannes was the oldest child, that Evert was third and Gerrit fourth. Then followed the others, Nicholas, Catharine, and Benjamin. Nicholas and Catharine disappear from view, after the record of their baptism, and their inclusion in the "seven children" specified in their father's will. It is probable that they died before majority.

A deed was made September 1, 1697, by Johannes, Evert, Gerrit, and Benjamin, and Moses Dupuis, to Jacob Rutse, of lands whereof Cornelius Wynkoop, deceased, late of Kingston, was in possession. And a partition deed was executed April 26, 1715, by Major Johannes, Captain Gerrit, and Benjamin, and Moses Dupuis, to Evert Wynkoop.[1]

Third Generation.

Children of Cornelius No. 2 and of Maria Jans Langedyck.

3. Maria (Marytje).—She was the elder daughter, and probably the oldest or second child. Her husband's name was Moses Du Puy, written also Du Puite and Du Puis. Baptisms of their children are recorded at Kingston, as follows: Cornelius, January 1, 1688; Benjamin, October 13, 1695; Jacobus, Sept. 19, 1703.

4. Johannes, Major.—Born at Albany. He was probably the oldest son, and perhaps the oldest child. On the 27th of June, 1679, he was bound to Benjamin Provoost, to learn the blacksmith's trade; but the indentures were canceled, and in November he was bound to Bruyn Hager, of Hurley, to learn the same trade.[2]

His first wife was Judith Bloodgood, as appears from the baptismal records of their children. They were married June 7, 1687, the record describing him as born at Albany, and her at Flushing, Zealand, and calling her Judith Franse.[3]

He took the oath of allegiance to the British in 1689, in Ulster County.[4]

Cornelia Ten Broeck was his second wife. Their marriage license was dated June 9, 1696.[5] She was daughter of Major Dirk Wesselse Ten Broeck and of Christina Cornelise Van Buren.[6]

In 1728 he was recognized as a freeholder of Kingston, and as a Major. And in the same year, in a "List of Commanding Officers, as well Military as Civil," he is classed with "Old officers and old men."[1]

His last will was dated June 9, 1730, and he died shortly thereafter.

A deed, dated September 13, 1733, was executed by Capt. Cornelius, of Hurley, blacksmith, Derick, of the same place and trade, Johannes, of Kingston, cordwainer, Jacob Ten Broeck and Elizabeth his wife, Johannes De Lamater, cordwainer, and Christina his wife, to Thomas Beekman, joiner, and Marytje his wife. It referred to Major Johannes as deceased.[2]

Another deed, never recorded, and now in the possession of the Compiler, dated September 30, 1737, was executed by Cornelius and Derick, of Hurley, blacksmiths, Johannes, of Kingston, Esquire, Thomas Beekman, of the same place, joiner, and Marytje his wife, Johannes De Lamater, of Kingston, cordwainer, and Christina his wife, to Jacob Ten Broeck, Esquire, of Kingston, and Elizabeth his wife. It recited that Cornelius, Derick, Johannes, Thomas Beekman and wife, and Johannes De Lamater and wife, were heirs of Johannes Wynkoop, lately of Kingston, and possessed of land in Kingston, by assignment to Johannes Wynkoop, deceased, dated July 16, 1713–14,[3] endorsed upon the back of deed dated February 13, 1688, from the Trustees of Kingston to Humphrey Davenport.

And still another deed is found, dated October 1, 1737, executed by Cornelius, eldest son, Derick, another son, Elizabeth, eldest daughter, and Jacob Ten Broeck her husband, Marytje, another daughter, and Thomas Beekman her husband, Christina, youngest daughter, and Johannes De Lamater her husband, children of the late Major Johannes, conveying lands to Johannes Wynkoop, High Sheriff of the county, youngest son of said Major Johannes. It mentioned the Major's will as dated June 9, 1730.[4]

5. Evert.—Born March 24, 1665, died July 31, 1746.[5]

On the 26th of August, 1688, he intermarried with Gertrude Elmendorf. The record describes him as born at Albany and living at Kingston.[1]

He took the oath of allegiance to the British in 1689, in Ulster County.[2]

His second wife was Annetje (or Antje) Kiersted. She was daughter of Roelof Kiersted and Eyke Roosa, and a descendant of Annetje Webber, wife of Roelof Jansen, and afterward of Rev. Everardus Bogardus, who is familiarly and expensively known to her descendants, to Trinity Church, and to the courts of New York, as Anneke Janse. Roelof Jansen and wife had a daughter, Sarah Roeloffe, who was married to Hans Kiersted, and their son Roelof Kiersted was husband of Eyke Roosa.[3]

The ancestor of the Kiersteds was killed in France for his religion, and his dead body was dragged through the street by the hair of his head. His son, who was a weaver of fine fabrics, was stripped of his property. His wife peddled needles and other small things. Both were industrious, and they got together considerable money, which they invested in black broadcloth, and bringing the cloth with them to New Amsterdam, they found profitable sale, for some conspicuous man had recently died, and black goods were in demand, while the supply was short. The sale of the cloth gave them such a start that they were in possession of a large property at the time of their death.[4]

Evert is mentioned as a freeholder at Kingston in 1728, and his widow is recorded as a slaveholder at Hurley, in 1755.[5]

The Caatsbaan church, about three miles above the village of Saugerties, which was built in 1732, and enlarged in 1816, had the initials E. W. K. engraved upon one of the stones in its front wall, along with the initials of other persons. This was a memorial of this Evert.[6] He does not seem to have been a member of that church, but his son, Johannes E., was, in 1738, and his grandson, Evert, in 1759. The church was rebuilt in 1867, and the stone above mentioned was inserted in the rear wall. It seems to have been broken at that time, for the letter E does not now appear with the other initials.

Evert's last will, dated Beaverkill of Kingston, June 2, 1746, mentions his wife, Antje; his grandchildren Evert and Tjaatje, children of Cornelius; his son Tobias; his grandchildren Evert and Catharine, children of Hezekiah; his sons Jacobus and Johannes; his daughter Antje; and his granddaughter Geertje Decker. This will was never proven nor recorded, and is in possession of the Compiler, who received it from Judge Henry Wynkoop, of Catskill, No. "329."

6. Gerrit.—On the 8th of July, 1679, he was apprenticed to Heyman Albert, for five years, to learn shoemaking. His wife was daughter of Gerrit Fokker and Jakomyntje Slecht. Her mother afterward was married to Jan Eltinge, and was mother of a family of that name.[1]

The name of Gerrit's wife appears in the baptismal records of Kingston and Albany as Hilletje (Maria?), with the surname Fokker. But the name is preserved, by the descendants in Pennsylvania, as Helena Eltinge, and she was therefore probably known by that name, taking her stepfather's surname.

Gerrit took the oath of allegiance to the British in 1689, in Ulster County. In the year 1700 he was Ensign of a foot company in the counties of Ulster and Dutchess, under Coenraad Elmendorf, Captain. In 1712 he was Deacon in the Dutch church at Kingston, and as such joined in a petition for its incorporation.[2]

He was known as Gerardus at Esopus, where he was engaged in farming until 1717, when he sold his land in Ulster County, and removed to the township of Moreland, then Philadelphia, now Montgomery, County, Pennsylvania, where his name was transformed to Gerrit. His family then consisted of his wife, Helena Eltinge, and children, Cornelius, Gerrit, Nicholas, Henry, Philip, Mary, Jemima, and Ann.[3] Jemima, in the baptismal record, is called Jakomyntje, (Anglice, Jamesina).

Gerrit Wynkoop was an Elder, January 1, 1744–5, of the Church of North and South Hampton, Pa.

His descendants now own and occupy land in Northampton Township, Berks County, Pennsylvania, which is said to have been in continuous possession of the family since it was purchased by this Gerrit, from whom it passed to his son Gerrit.

7. Nicholas.—Baptized October 15, 1668, recorded Claus.[1] The correct Dutch would have been Klaas. He must have been one of the "seven" children specified in his father's will, 1676, but no subsequent trace has been found.

8. Catharine.—Baptized June 18, 1671.[1] She has not been traced beyond her mother's will, 1679, in which Marytje is called oldest daughter.

9. Benjamin.—Baptized November 5, 1673.[1] He intermarried with Femmetje (Phebe?) Vander Huil, October 20, 1697. The record described him as from Kingston, and her as of New York.[2] She was daughter of Abraham Vander Heul[3] and of Tryntje Hendricks Kip, and was baptized August 6, 1671.[4] She is called Effonio Vander Hule in licence of marriage, recorded in Record of Wills, N. Y., Vol. 5, p. 259.

Benjamin was a goldsmith.[5] He voted in the South Ward, New York, September 29, 1701. And on the 15th of June, 1724, he appears, with other inhabitants of the South Ward, in a remonstrance against leasing the ground on which the market formerly stood.[6] He and his wife were both living, in December, 1737.[7] In April, 1741, his slave, London, a Spanish Indian, was indicted, with others, for a conspiracy to burn the city.[8]

Fourth Generation.

Children of Major Johannes, No. 4, and of Judith Bloodgood.

10. Cornelius.—Baptized June 4, 1688. He intermarried with Hendrika Newkirk, Dec. 14, 1711. The record calls her Hendrickjen, and describes both as born and living at Marbletown.[1] The proper English would be Henrietta or Harriet, but she seems to have retained the spelling Hendrika. (In the Preliminary Genealogy she was recorded as the wife of the namesake and cousin of this Cornelius, in deference to an opinion other than that of the Compiler. Subsequent investigation has confirmed the Compiler in his own opinion, and he therefore has followed it here.)

In 1733 and 1737 he is described in deeds as a blacksmith of Hurley.

His last will, as of Hurley, Sept. 19, 1739, mentions ten children, Judith, Elizabeth, Cornelia, Johannes, Catharina, Lea, Adriaan, Cornelius, Petrus, and Maria. He names his wife one of the executors, but as letters of administration were granted April 3, 1747, to the "surviving executors" by the Surrogate of Ulster County, and she is not included among them, she must then have been dead.[2]

11. Elizabeth.—She was described as oldest daughter in a partition deed. Was married to Jacob Ten Broeck, of Kingston, January 17, 1712. Their child Wessel was baptized Dec. 7, 1712.[1]

12. Maria.—Baptized April 23, 1693. She was married Jan. 14, 1715, to Thomas Beekman, both of them described as living at Kingston. He was son of Johannes Beekman and Aletta Lawrence.[3] Their child Judickjen (or Judith) was baptized Dec. 11, 1715.[1]

Children of Major Johannes, No. 4, and of Cornelia Ten Broeck.

13. Christina.—Baptized March 14, 1697. She was married May 12, 1723, to Johannes De Lamater, both of them born and living at Kingston.

Johannes De Lamater, baptized Kingston, July 4, 1697, son of Abraham De Lamater, by his second wife Elsie Tappen, was Trustee of Kingston 1727–1740. Johannes' second wife was Maria Decker.

His children were: Cornelius, baptized March 1, 1724; Abraham John, baptized about 1730; Sarah Ten Broeck; Margretje Ten Broeck; Elsie, baptized April 3, 1726; Annetje, baptized Nov. 1, 1736.[4] A transcript from the church records at Kingston, furnished to the Compiler, gives the baptism of a child Cornelia, Feb. 23. 1724.

14. Derick[1] (Richard).—Born Nov. 1, 1698, intermarried with Gertrude Kool, July 3, 1725, died March 30, 1763. They removed to Hurley April 20, 1732.[2]

He was baptized Nov. 6, 1698. In the marriage record he is described as born and living at Kingston, and she as born at Hurley.[3] She was youngest daughter of Cornelius Cole.[4]

15. Catharina.—Baptized January 19, 1701.[3] She probably died young, for she is not mentioned in the partition deeds of her father's property in 1733 and 1737, and her sister Christina is called youngest daughter.

16. Johannes.—Sheriff. Born October 7, 1702, died August 8, 1791.[5] Baptized October 14, 1702.[3]

He intermarried December 19, 1728, with Maria Bogardus, both of them described as living at Kingston.[3] She was a descendant of Rev. Everardus Bogardus, by his wife Annetje or Anneke. Their son William, born 1638, intermarried August 29, 1659, with Wyntje Sybrant. Everardus, son of William, born November 2, 1660, intermarried with Tjaatje Hoffman, June 9, 1697. Maria, daughter of the second Everardus, born April 13, 1709, was the Maria above mentioned.

Among the settlers at Rensselaerwyck, 1630, were Roelof Jansen Van Maasterlandt and his wife and family. He came out as a farmer to the Patroon, at $72 per year. Five or six years later, the family were found at New Amsterdam, where Jansen received a patent in 1636 for thirty-one morgens of land lying along the North River. (One of their descendants was married to Evert Wynkoop, already mentioned). Jansen died, and his widow was married in 1637 or 1638 to Rev. Everardus Bogardus, who was the first settled minister at New Amsterdam. Bogardus died 1647, and his widow returned to Albany, where she died in 1663.[6] He had been Pastor at New Amsterdam, 1633 to 1647, and was lost with the ship "Princess" on a voyage to Holland.[1] This widow of Roelof Jansen, and of Rev. Everardus Bogardus, born Ann Webber, has since been well known as Anneke Jans.

John Wynkoop was described as a cordwainer in 1733, and as Esquire in 1737. In 1731 he was Sheriff of Ulster County.[2]

His tombstone is standing in the yard of the First Reformed Church, Kingston.

His heirs are named in a deed June 9, 1795, as follows: Petrus, Jr.; Joseph Gasherie and Catharine his wife; Benjamin De Meyer and Elizabeth his wife; Christopher Tappen and Annetje his wife; Christina, Lydia, Geertruy, all of Kingston; Peter of New York; and Henry (born) Schoonmaker, of Poughkeepsie.[3]

17. Lydia.—Baptized Feb. 21, 1714.[4] She probably died young, as she is not mentioned in the deeds relative to her father's estate, in 1733 and 1737, and Christina is there called youngest daughter.

Children of Evert, No. 5, and of Gertrude Elmendorf.

18. Cornelius.—Baptized October 13, 1689. His wife, in the record of baptism of their children, is called Barbara Mattysen[5] and Matthysen.[4] Her name is said to have been Van Keuren.[6] They left but two children, who are mentioned in the will of Evert, the grandfather. Cornelius seems to have died young.

19. Jacobus (Jacob or James).—Baptized May 26, 1691.[4] He is mentioned in his father's will in 1746. His wife seems to have been Jannetjen Bogardus. He was probably a resident of Rochester, Ulster County. See deed by Jacobus, of Rochester, to Matthys Duboys and Evert Wynkoop of Kingston, August 29, 1726.[7]

20. Nicholas.—Baptized April 28, 1693.[4] He is not mentioned in his father's will.

22. Marytje (Maria).—Baptized September 11, 1697.[1]
23. Catharina.—Baptized December 17, 1699.[1] By the name of Catharina Evertse she was married to Johannes Decker, December 29, 1720; both of them described as born at Kingston.[1] Her father's will mentions his granddaughter, Geertje Decker.
24. Ann.—Baptized April 26, 1702.[1] She is mentioned as Antje in the will of her father. She was married to Johannes Swart, October 30, 1724. Their children were Evert Wynkoop, baptized February 16, 1734, husband of Maria Persen; and Elizabeth, baptized April 14, 1745.[1]
25. Teola or Teold, (possibly Yeola).—Baptized February 18, 1705.[2] No trace of this name, subsequent to the baptism, has been found. Perhaps the record is a contraction of Theobold.

Children of Evert, No. 5, and of Ann Kiersted.

26. Johannes Everts.[3]—Born October 12, 1707. Baptized Johannes, October 28, 1707. He intermarried with Catharina Schut, May 18, 1730. The marriage record describes him as living at Hackensack, and her as born and living at Saugerties.[1] In 1738 they are recorded as members of the Caatsbaan church, near Saugerties, her name being written Schot. In the baptismal records of their children the mother's name is spelled sometimes the one way, sometimes the other.
27. Tobias.—Baptized May 7, 1710.[1] He died in infancy. (See another son of the same name.)
28. Maria.—Baptized Marytje, August 10, 1712.[1] She is not mentioned in her father's will, 1746.
29. Hezekiah.—Born January 16, 1715. Died November 22, 1745.[4] He was baptized January 23, 1715.[1] Intermarried with Marytje Davenport, February 13, 1741. She was born September 27, 1717, died February 1, 1785.[4] Hezekiah is recorded as a member of the Caatsbaan church in 1743.
30. Tobias.—Baptized April 28, 1717.[1] Intermarried with Leah Legg, November 11, 1741. Their children resided in the town of Saugerties. They were men of wealth,

35. Gerrit.—Baptized November 29, 1702.[3] It seems that he was father of Gerardus, Adrian, and James, hereinafter mentioned; and Garrett, No. "430," claims him as his great grandfather; but the name of his wife has not been discovered.
36. Nicholas.—Born February 9, 1705; intermarried with Ann Kuypers, September 29, 1732; died August 3, 1759. The wife's name is also spelled Ruhl, elsewhere.

Cornelius was an attorney-at-law, as appears by the description of him, 1795, in several conveyances,[6] and was a resident of the City of New York. He was admitted "freeman" of the city in 1770, described as "shop-keeper."[7]

"I recollect hearing my mother relate the incidents of a journey from Esopus to Wilkesbarre by wagon, through a wilderness, and from Wilkesbarre to Tioga Point, now Athens, Penn., up the north branch of the Susquehanna, more than 100 miles, by a flat-boat, and up the Chemung, by canoes, to a neighborhood of Indians, who used to bring venison in abundance, and treated them kindly. She said that deer were then very plentiful. A hunter, who lived with them, thought it a small matter to go and kill and bring one in before breakfast. Fish were also very abundant. But there were no mills, and she said that the first wheat that grandfather raised, he took in a canoe down the river to Wilkesbarre to mill, and pushed it home up stream, more than 100 miles. The second year, grandfather built a mill on Wynkoop's Creek, where I now reside. The mill-stones were worked from rocks near Towanda, Bradford County, Penn. The early settlers came more than 100 miles to this mill."

Jonathan, b. December 3, 1727, was fifth child of Barent Du Bois, b. May 3, 1693, and of Jakomyntje (born) Du Bois, his cousin. His wife was Eleanor, d. of Nicholas Wynkoop, of Bucks County, Penn. He was educated at the Classical Academy of the Synod of Philadelphia, at New London, Chester County, Penn. He seems to have been licensed to preach, and to have settled at North Hampton, Bucks County, shortly previous to November 22, 1750.[1]

113. Henry, Judge.—Born March 2, O. S., 1737. He intermarried September 10, 1761, with Susannah Wanshaer, only daughter of John Wanshaer and Christina Egberts, in the county of Essex, New Jersey. He intermarried April 21, 1782, with Sarah Newkirk, daughter of Cornelius Newkirk and Rachel Forsyth, of Pittsgrove, in the county of Salem, New Jersey. She died June 28, 1813, aged 71 years. (According to another account, the third marriage was in 1792, and the name of the wife's mother was Rachel Ten Eyck.)

Henry was a lieutenant in the Revolutionary army.[2] He was an Associate Judge of the Common Pleas of Bucks County, Penn. He died March 25, 1816. In 1789 he resigned the Eldership of the church of North and South Hampton, Pa., because of his absence as Representative in Congress.

The Pennsylvania Convention, July 23, 1776, chose by ballot a Council of Safety for the State, among others Henry Wynkoop for Bucks County. In Council of Safety, August 7, 1776, Mr. Henry Wynkoop appeared, and took and subscribed the qualification directed by the Convention. In the same, August 8, two orders were drawn for £250 each, in favor of Henry Wynkoop, for the families of the poor Associators of Bucks County, and for equipping the militia of that county.[3]

Mr. W. B. Whitaker of Philadelphia wrote of him in the following terms:—"Judge Henry Wynkoop, of Bucks County, in this State, greatly distinguished himself by the active and determined part he took in favor of our struggle for independence. He served as a member of the First Provincial Conference of Pennsylvania, which convened in Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia, on the 18th of June, 1776. He was elected a member of the First Congress, which assembled at New York,[1] on the 4th of March, 1789. Judge Wynkoop's house was distinguished as the home of Col. Monroe, afterward President, during the time he was disabled by a wound received at the battle of Trenton. It was the letter of General Washington, addressed to his friend Wynkoop, that procured these hospitable quarters for Col. Monroe, and for which kind attention from the family of Judge Wynkoop, President Monroe, as late as the 26th of March, 1834, in a letter now before me, expressed the most lively gratitude, for the 'kindness received, during an interesting period of our Revolutionary War.'"[2]

General Alexander Hamilton and Judge Wynkoop were members of the First Continental Congress. On one occasion, while walking on Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, the General was urging very strongly the claims of a bill before the House, for which he wished to secure his friend's support. But the Judge, desiring to avoid the discussion, because he was averse to the measure, changed the subject, by calling the General's attention to two very beautiful women, who had just passed them. The conversation was not resumed; but forty-eight hours afterward Mrs. Wynkoop arrived quite unexpectedly, from her home in Bucks County, having traveled all night, in consequence of a letter received from General Hamilton, requesting her immediate presence, as her husband was in a very dangerous condition. The joke was well taken, and it was succeeded by another. The Judge prepared a similar letter, imputing danger to the General, and sent it to Mrs. Hamilton at New York. This caused a similar response, in the hurried presence of Mrs. Hamilton, who showed the Judge's letter. The affair caused great merriment, and the ladies had a gay and pleasant visit to their husbands; the only evil being the anxiety of the ladies respectively while on their way to Philadelphia.[3]

General Washington was in favor of styling the President, High Mightiness, and asked General Muhlenburgh's opinion. Henry Wynkoop was standing by. General Muhlenburgh replied: If all the incumbents were to have the commanding size and presence of yourself, or of my friend Wynkoop, the title might be appropriate, but if applied to some lesser men it would provoke ridicule.[1]

His wife, according to the baptismal records in New York of their children, was Alida Koens, but the family have her name as Alida Myers. Probably she was daughter of Koenraad Myers. She was of Curaçoa, and was born October 11, 1736, and died October 16, 1794. Jacobus died May 4, 1795, according to tomb inscription.[3]

He was commissioned, on the 28th of June, 1775, eighth Captain of the 4th N. Y. Continental Regiment, commanded by Col. Holmes.[1] August 15, 1775, he wrote to the Provincial Congress, complaining of his position; setting forth that he was 51 years old, had served in the last two wars by sea and land, and been in many engagements; had been specially honored and trusted by General Gage, who had given him command of a company to which his baggage was entrusted; and had been offered a commission in the Royal Americans.[2] March 8, 1776, General Philip Schuyler, in a letter to Nathaniel Woodhull, expressed a high opinion of Jacobus' fitness to command certain vessels.[3]

April 13, 1776, it was ordered, in Committee of Safety, New York, that Jacobus Wynkoop enlist the number of mariners desired by Maj. Gen. Schuyler, for service on the lakes, and proceed with them to Albany, and take Schuyler's orders as to vessels on the lakes, until the Continental Congress shall appoint him, or some other gentleman shall arrive at the lakes authorized to command.[4]

April 29, 1776, Committee of Safety communicated with our delegate at Philadelphia, urging the appointment of Capt. Wynkoop to command on the lakes, referring to him as follows: Bred a mariner; had been frequently master of mercantile vessels; had served with reputation in the last war, both in the land and sea service; and was an officer of merit.[5]

May 7, 1776, General Schuyler to Capt. Wynkoop, at Fort George, ordered him to repair to Ticonderoga, and take command of all the vessels on the lakes.[6]

August 6, 1776, letter from Jacobus Wynkoop to Council of Safety, informed them that on April 18th, agreeably with the order of the Council of Safety, he took command as Commodore of the vessels on Lake Champlain. By advice of the commander of the Northern Department, he requested aid of the Council. Letter was referred to the Governor.[7]

August 17, 1776, General Benedict Arnold ordered two schooners of the fleet down the lake; the Commodore brought them to; Arnold went on board and satisfied Wynkoop of the necessity, and Wynkoop ordered them under sail. The former made report of the facts the same day, from Crown Point to General Horatio Gates at Ticonderoga. Wynkoop also reported the facts the same day to General Gates, and maintained that Arnold should not have issued orders to the captains directly; that himself was to be independent of all, except the Commander-in-Chief.[1]

August 18, 1776. General Gates ordered Arnold to put Wynkoop under arrest, and send him prisoner to headquarters at Ticonderoga. The same day he wrote to General Schuyler urging the dismissal of Wynkoop from the service. And the day following he wrote again to General Arnold, urging no longer delay in the arrest of Wynkoop.[2]

Meanwhile, on the 19th, General Arnold had written to General Gates, that he had ordered Wynkoop to headquarters, and he wished it might be considered proper to permit him to return home, without being cashiered. On the following day Gates wrote to Schuyler that he had given a pass to Wynkoop to Albany; and that he must, on no account, be sent to Ticonderoga. Schuyler replied from Albany, that Wynkoop was to remain there.[3]

On the 27th, Wynkoop memorialized Congress, and Schuyler transmitted the memorial two days later, saying that Wynkoop was brave and industrious, and equal to the command of the vessels on the lakes when he had recommended him; but he did not know him sufficiently to judge whether he was equal to the present command, and he had therefore heard of General Arnold's appointment with great satisfaction.[4]

On the same day Schuyler wrote to Gates in the same sense.[5]

Wynkoop is said to have been reinstated in the command in March, 1777, and to have retained it until the evacuation of Ticonderoga.[6]

August 6, 1777, Wynkoop communicated with the Council of Safety, with regard to arrangement of accounts

January 24, 1783, he claimed that there was due him a balance of £956 6*s*. 8*d*. Resolution of the Continental Congress, April 19, 1782, referred the matter to the State of New York.[2]

Dirk seems to be the proper spelling of this name. The Judge, however, uniformly wrote his name with the "c," and he was so addressed by his friends and compatriots. But in this family the spelling has been usually Derick, as to other members of the same name, down to the present time.

He was a member of the Committee of Safety, and of the Second Provincial Congress, which met at New York, November 14, 1775. By an ordinance of the Convention of 1777, he was appointed a Judge of the Common Pleas of Ulster County, associate of Levi Pawling, First Judge. He was a member of the New York Assembly, 1780–1. years First Judge of the county. In 1788 he was a member of the State Convention to which was submitted the Federal Constitution.[1]

The New York Convention, October 15, 1776, adopted a preamble, reciting that the records of the city and county of New York, and of the county and borough of Westchester, were in private hands in the county of Westchester, and unsafe because of the enemy having landed in that county, and appointed William Miller, Theodore Bartow, and John Cozine commissioners, to remove, with all possible expedition, the records to Kingston, Ulster county, and there place them in care of Dirck Wynkoop, Abram Hasbrouck, and Christopher Tappen, (see No. "75"); and empowered them to call for a guard to protect the removal.[2]

The Committee of Safety, through order signed John McKesson, Fishkill, October 17, 1776, sent the papers of the late Receiver-General's office, to the same persons, at Kingston, with instructions to take care equal to, or even greater than, that used with the other public records.[3]

On the 10th of October of the following year, the Committee of Safety directed Abram Hasbrouck, Joseph Gasherie, Dirck Wynkoop, Jr., Christopher Tappen, and Samuel Bayard, Jr., who had charge of the public records of the Colony, which had been deposited at Kingston in June, 1776, to remove the property in their custody to Rochester [Ulster county]. In case of necessity, Judge Wynkoop and Oke Suydam were to impress teams. On the 16th of the same month, the British burned Kingston, in revenge, because the Convention had met there, in April, 1777, and adopted a Constitution. Some of the public papers, in Mr. Bancker's charge, at Judge Wynkoop's house, on the corner of Pearl and Fair streets, were removed only a few minutes before a party of the Redcoats began to plunder the buildings.[4]

Governor George Clinton, Poughkeepsie, May 4, 1778, wrote to Judge Wynkoop, of a contribution from Charleston, S. C., of £927 17*s.* 16*d.*, for the Kingston sufferers, and of his own purpose to grant exemptions to mechanics from ordinary militia service, when they would work at reasonable wages in rebuilding.[3]

In 1787–89, Judge Wynkoop was owner of the brig Esopus, trading between Kingston and the West Indies, of which Jacobus Wynkoop, (No. "121"), was at one time master.

J. Van Rensselaer, Chairman of Republican Committee, Albany, April 23, 1789, wrote to Joseph Gasherie, Dirck Wynkoop, and Christopher Tappen, Kingston Republican Committee, urging efforts for the re-election of Governor Clinton.[1]

William H. Dederick, of Kingston, says of Judge Wynkoop: "He was a member of the Consistory of the First Reformed Church of Kingston, a number of times. This seems to have been a characteristic of the family. In the many records I have examined, I can not forbear saying, I have found no parallel."

His last will, dated August 28, 1794, was proven February 18, 1797, and is recorded at Kingston, Book B, p. 382.

His tombstone, in good preservation, stands beside that of his father, in the yard of the First Reformed Church, Kingston.

Was graduated from Columbia College 1819; studied Theology at the Reformed Dutch Seminary at New Brunswick, and completed his studies with Rev. Dr. Robert McCartee, of New York; was licensed to preach April 5, 1826, by the Second Presbytery of New York, Associate Reformed; served as missionary of the Dutch Church at Cato, New York, in the winter of 1826–7; Pastor of the General Assembly Presbyterian Church at Yorktown, Westchester County, New York, 1827–1834, during which time sixteen were added on examination and four on certificate; and of a church of the same order at Hagerstown, Md., until his death. During his ministry in the latter church, it returned to its old connection with the Associated Reformed body; a suit in chancery ensued, he prepared his own answer, and obtained leave of the Vice-Chancellor to be heard personally on behalf also of the other defendants, the ruling elders, but the suit was never ready for hearing, on the part of the complainants. His widow returned to New Brunswick in 1843. A more extended account of him (of which the dates, however, are not all of them exact), and an appreciative description of his characteristics, may be found in Vol. IX., Annals Amer. Pulpit. Brief mention of him is also made in a Historical Sermon, by Rev. W. J. Cumming, of the Yorktown Church.

A course of law study has been erroneously attributed to him. His brother's legal education has been somewhat currently transferred to himself.

He found the church at Yorktown in chronic trouble of many years' standing. Under the influence of a former pastor, congregational views of church polity had been inculcated; the functions of the eldership had been ignored; vacancies in that office were purposely left unfilled, and finally the remaining elder and nine other members of the church were excommunicated in 1806. These expelled Presbyterians reorganized, and on the petition of thirty-three persons were constituted a church, June 10, 1806, under the care of the Presbytery of Hudson. They had been reincorporated, March 4, 1806, as the "First Presbyterian Church of Yorktown, settled upon the plan of the Church of Scotland." The Congregationalists had been also reincorporated, on the 5th of March, 1806, under the same name with the Presbyterians, and they chose two "elders," under a resolution, which left their functions and powers vague. They remained in connection with the Associated Presbytery of Westchester. They were ejected in a law suit, May 18, 1807, and subsequently came out in their true colors, as Congregationalists.

While Mr. Wynkoop was pastor of this Presbyterian Church, which was now connected with the Presbytery of Bedford, another minister of the same Presbytery administered sealing ordinances to the Congregational Church of Yorktown. Charges against him were laid before the Presbytery, under Mr. Wynkoop's auspices, but he was acquitted. The Synod of New York reversed the decission. This action of the pastor has been criticised as having widened the breach, and postponed the day of restoration. No wholesome restoration could have been effected; it is doubtful whether even a troublous one could have been made, until the active participants, and interested spectators of the earlier strife should have passed away, and until the seceders could fully abandon their congregationalism. These results coincided in May, 1866, when the Congregational Church dissolved itself, voted to sell its property, and gave certificates of good standing to its members. On the 5th of August, of the same year, the Presbyterian Church received such certified members to its membership, and thus the long and bitter strife, accompanied by social and family antagonism was happily closed. The church appears now to be quiet, contented, and prosperous. Mr. Wynkoop had laid the foundation for this long before, by the able presentation to both churches, and to the community, of the origin of the strife, and of the chief motive of the antagonists, and of the resulting status of the churches respectively. Congregationalism made the breach; re-adoption of Presbyterian principles by the straying portion of the flock, brought them back.

The genial and earnest friend of Mr. Wynkoop, who communicated a paper to Dr. Sprague for the Annals of the American Pulpit, in which he gave appreciative and ample description of his moral, intellectual, and physical characteristics, nevertheless withheld his approval from Mr. Wynkoop's course with reference to the difficulties in the Hagerstown church, and was "far from denying that his peculiar constitution may have sometimes led him into mistakes on this and on other occasions." This may have the more weight, as coming from a firm friend, and therefore, to keep the criticism within its just proportions, over against it should be stated the fact, that the writer was an attendant on the services of the church, but not enrolled as a member, and, from his attitude, as well as his temperament, could not sympathize with any uncomfortable proceedings to maintain its order and discipline.

course, when his ardent desire for the ministry prevailed, and he studied Theology at the Seminary, New Brunswick, receiving license 1824. Was a pastor in the Reformed Dutch Church at Hempstead, Rockland County, and Ramapo, 1825–1836; at Athens, 1838-40; subsequently in the Presbyterian Church at Gilbertsville, Delhi, and Cuba, Alleghany County, New York, and has had successful pastorates. This Genealogy, the amusement of leisure hours in 1850, became afterward very exacting of his time, and he commends a similar task to any one who is suffering from idleness or from an excess of petty cash.

He sometimes "drops into poetry," e. g., 1873:

THE ACHING HEART.

Say you that yonder is a happy man?
Your view is superficial. True, he wears
A cheerful face and has a mirthful voice;
He's free to make or hear a droll remark;
He laughs at others' mischief, and, in turn,
Can play at pranks himself; he seems quite gay;

Shafts wound him not, his senses are so dull!
He nothing cares for censure, nor applause.
And you conclude that this is happiness!
Let's look a little closer: he but wears
A coat of mail, which turns aside the blow
And hides the bruise. His mirthful ways are like
A curtain to the window of his soul,
To shut out idle gazers, lest they see
The grief he hides within. They also serve
Like purpose with preservers made of cork,
Which keep above the wave the heavy weight;
The presence of the cork suggests the need
Of borrowed buoyancy; were it withdrawn,
The gravity would weigh the body down.
Or, let us take another simile:
His soul is like a riven ship, which feels
The wound, though hid from sight, and finds the need
Of extra effort, to be kept afloat.
But, "What's his grief?" 'Tis naught to you nor me;
He suffers—that's enough to make us kind.
But "Who's the man of whom these things are true?"
Ther'e many such—I've shown you but the type.

TABLE OF DUTCH GIVEN NAMES.

Blandina.—This is an ancient name, apparently of Lyons. Fox, in his Book of Martyrs, mentions a woman of that name, who suffered in the "Fourth general persecution." Note, that French forms, also, of names, were in use among the Netherlanders and Knickerbockers.

Boudewyn, in Roman letters, should be Boudewijn.

408. Rev. Stephen Rose.—B. Nov. 24, 1806, at Northampton, Bucks Co., Penn., m., Aug. 24, 1836, Miss Aurelia Mills, daughter of the Hon. Isaac Mills, of New Haven, Conn., and of Abigail Phelps; d. at Princeton, N. J., of pneumonia, June 8, 1876.

He was graduated in 1829 at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y. On leaving college he was employed in teaching, first at Albany, N. Y., and afterward in Ohio. He then accompanied Rev. John Leighton Wilson to Africa, upon a tour of investigation, undertaken on behalf of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, exploring the western coast in 1833–4. He entered Princeton Seminary in the fall of 1834, and spent there a little over two years in study. His health had been impaired by fever taken in Africa. He was licensed by the Presbytery of New Brunswick, Feb. 8, 1837. In July, 1838, he was invited to supply the pulpit of the First Presbyterian Church at Wilmington, Del., and accepted the invitation. Aug. 7, 1838, he was ordained by the Presbytery of New Brunswick, and on the second Sabbath in August began to preach at Wilmington. The First Church was at that time in a very low condition, temporally and spiritually, but under his labors it soon began to show signs of growth and prosperity. On Nov. 19, 1838, a formal call to the pastorate was made out, and having been dismissed Dec. 18, 1838, by the Presbytery of New Brunswick to the Presbytery of New Castle, he was installed Jan. 22, 1839, by the latter Presbytery. The relation thus constituted proved to be a very happy one, continuing in unbroken harmony and great usefulness for very nearly twenty years, in which period constant and numerous additions were made to the church to which he ministered with fervor and success as a preacher, and with remarkable fidelity as a pastor.

In the fall of 1857 his health had become feeble, and he felt constrained to go to the South for the winter. He offered his resignation to the church, which declined it, with strong expressions of attachment to their pastor, but granted him leave of absence for a year. He then went to Florida, but, in the spring following, finding his health not improved, and his voice incapable of preaching service, he again presented his resignation and was released by his Presbytery, April 13, 1858, from his pastoral charge. The three years following were spent by him in New Haven, where his sons were in college. The years from 1862 to 1868 were chiefly spent in travel, with sojourns in many places of interest, both in this country and in Europe. In 1869 he removed to Princeton, N. J., which was his residence thenceforth to the end of his life. His son, the Rev. Theodore S. Wynkoop, having become a missionary to Northern India, the father and mother left home for India in August, 1870, and made a visit to their son in his missionary field, where they spent more than a year, reaching their home again in August, 1872.

He was a modest, true, kind-hearted man, instructive as a preacher, faithful and beloved as a pastor, honored by his brethren, and successful in the whole work of the ministry. He died in peace. (Necrological Rep. Alumni Ass'n, Princeton Theo. Sem., 1877.)

431. John Wanshaer.—The verses named were as follows :

"When on the stream of life we float,
In youth's impassioned hours,
We freight our gaily laden boat,
With bright and thornless flowers;
But as we hold our joyous way,
So happily and cheery,
We should reflect upon that day,
When ends the voyage—Mary.

"The stream is always, near its source,
Bedecked with brightest roses,
Which, as we hold our onward course,
Grow paler as it closes;
And ere we've floated half way down,
We find we've grown more wary;
Things which we smiled at, make us frown;—
We find we think more—Mary.

"Our brow grows clouded more with care,
Our boat more skill requires;
We find the stream hides many a snare,
Set by our own desires.
The waves of passion 'round us roll
In tempests—which to parry—
With firmness we must keep control
Of sober reason—Mary.

In youth shine most serenely,
And, as she sports her thousand dyes,
We're apt to gaze too keenly;
Young Fancy holds her mirror up,
To figures light and airy,
But oft we, sighing, drain the cup
Of disappointment—Mary.

"Ther 'e others voyaging upon
This wild and rapid river,
And as our ceaseless boat moves on,
We're jostling with them ever.
If virtue, then, we make our guide,
Our course we need not vary,
But calmly toward that haven glide,
We all are bound to—Mary.

"And when at last Time's ebbing tide
Hath borne us to that ocean,
Which buries all of human pride,
And pleasures and commotion;—
When this bright world is growing dim,
When life itself is weary,
May thou and I still look to Him,
With faith and hope, dear Mary."
